1952 Iris Listing

- ★ BEARDED IRIS
- ★ SIBERIANS
- ★ SPURIAS

Hello Again!

Here we are once more at the start of the iris season. Right now, in mid-April, it's more like July than the month of showers; hot, dry and windy. The sort of weather that lengthens the day and shortens the temper. We hope for the blessing of cooling rains. But whatever the weather the iris take it with becoming grace, more than we can say for ourselves.

Our catalog is again a modest one. Every year we have said, "Next year we must have a few pictures—at least one on the cover." But every year costs go up and we decide that maybe next year . . . So bear with us once more, perhaps in time we'll at least have a likeness of our beloved Solveg. And in the meantime the iris, pictured or not, are as lovely and magical as ever. We only hope that our meager descriptions may create a lovely image in your minds and that many of you will be able to come to the garden and meet the iris in person. The latch string is out so far it's fairly waving in the breeze (and we do mean breeze!), can you see it from there? Be seeing you we hope!

Yours till then,

Ruth M. Johnson
